Dear Families,

You may have seen the announcement last night from Boris Johnson the prime minister, about schools reopening to more children (reception and Year 1) after half term.

The prime minister made it clear that reopening schools to these year groups on 1st June is not yet confirmed and will depend on what happens with infection rates and other data over the next few weeks. It is still not clear how such a reopening could practically and safely happen and we have no details of government expectations.

At the moment we are waiting for more information from the government and guidance from the local authority and unions. We will be in contact with you when we have something more definite we can share with you. In the meantime the current arrangements for school will continue.

Best wishes

Mrs Mardell
